

Internship < Next Generation Cloud Migration >

Description

Are you excited about Cloud computing and want to help creating the next generation Cloud migration tools and approaches? We are looking forward involving you in emerging technologies research journey with our best experts in the industry.

You will investigate the potential products and services which can be developed and marketed, identify the barriers and enablers for enterprises and potentially develop your own technological approach.

You will analyze the impact of various approaches in a long run and assess the challenges the industry is facing now.

Accenture will help you by providing access to subject matter experts, internal research done in this field, and contacts with our clients to conduct interviews and collect data.

We encourage candidates to develop their own research questions in the area of Cloud Migration, which meets both academic demands and Accenture interests.
